This orienteering course is an Eagle Scout project designed by Pete Smith - BSA Troop 142.

About this Course

This permanent orienteering course is located in Lititz, a borough in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. Lititz is 9 miles north of the City of Lancaster. With a population of approximately 9500 residents, it was founded by members of the Moravian church in 1756. During the American Revolutionary War, the Brethren House served as a hospital for wounded soldiers, some of whom are buried here. Another notable landmark is Linden Hall, the oldest all-girls boarding school in the United States. Hard pretzels were invented in Lititz in 1861 by Julius Sturgis with the opening of the first commercial pretzel factory in the country. In 1978, Muhammed Ali held a press conference in Lititz to introduce the Muhammad Ali Crisp Crunch candy bar made by Wilbur Chocolate. Since 1818, Lititz has hosted the oldest continuously held 4th of July celebration in the United States..

Special thanks to The Borough of Lititz, Lititz Parks and Recreation, Lititz Springs Park, and Lititz Sign Company for support of this project.

Lititz Orienteering Course

Sample Control Point

What is Orienteering?

The basic definition of orienteering is finding your way from one point to another, using only a map, a compass, and your brain. This course can be completed using the PDF viewer and compass on your phone.

Orienteering is an activity done by yourself, with friends, or with family. It can also be done for sport while you time yourself and your opponents.

At each orange and white control point, you will find a number and letters. The number on the sign tells you where you are along the course. Write the letters that you find at each control point in the correct boxes on your map. Once you reach all the points and have a completed code, check your results online using the QR code.
